The White Doves of Yuma

Friday, January 25, 2013
by: Michael Townsend, Yuma, Arizona:

Much like Canada the United States is a beautiful place but it seems to be entrenched in a level of violence that is part and parcel of what it is and what it will be. Michael is spending the winter in Yuma away from his home in Kamloops and thinks perhaps this may be the end of winters in the warmth and sunlight.

Tim's Tip of the Day

Typewriters were pretty much a business machine before the 1960s. Up until then the straight pen or fountain pen was the word processor for most people. Ball point pens were available in the mid 50s but most teachers would not accept them until about 1959. It is entirely possible that cursive handwriting may almost disappear with the children of today being those last to learn the skill. \(Click here to see full size.\)

Find of the Day

Joe Schlesinger: The ping-pong player who changed the world

In the midst of the cold war with the USA in full war in Vietnam China was pretty much cut off from the world. But that changed quickly with the gesture of a ping pong player then Canada's diplomatic trip to China made way for US President Nixon to make the historic effort to normalize relations with the world's most populated country.

Having considered the story about Idle No more that appeared in Ensign last week, Stu Innes gives us a thoughtful discussion about the issue and makes some solid suggestions toward finding a reasonable working solution.
