Tim's Tip of the Day

The United States war in Vietnam ended thirty-seven years ago. A limited war fought by proxies as the Soviet Union and China chose IndoChina as the theatre to engage the Americans but avoiding an all out war. (Click here to see full size.)

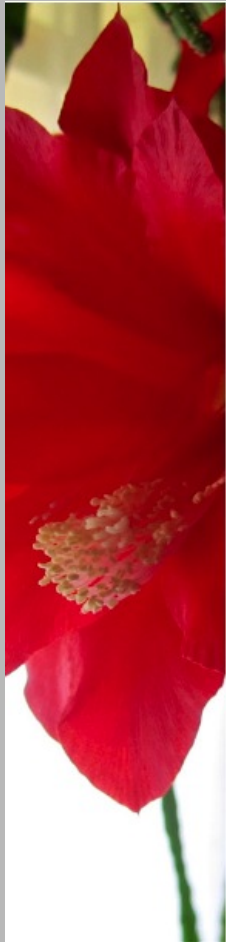

Find of the Day

June 8, 1972 Nick Ut took the Pulitzer prize image of a naked nine year old horribly burned with napalm. The image had a profound affect on ending the conflict. The girl, Phan Thi Kim

Phuc lives in Toronto with her husband and sons.

For decades Albert has been fascinated with the joy of springs arrival and with it the coming of pussy willows. He has a great tree in his back yard and a poem to go with the beauties.
