This North American F86 H Sabre sits on its post at the airport in Jamestown North Dakota. The "H" version was bigger and heavier with superior performance to earlier versions. There were 453 of them made and they were never used in combat. This one "53-1253" served with the Delaware National Guard and has been in place since 1970 with this somewhat odd paint job and no markings.

Tim's Tip of the Day

Of course you can go camping and not have a campfire just like having a chocolate sundae without the ice cream or the chocolate, but to savour you time sitting by a fire swatting bugs is one of life's sweet pleasures.
(Click here to see full size.)

Find of the Day

Sask. to keep teaching cursive writing

Some school systems have decided to end the laborious process of teaching chilling how to join the letters together in handwriting.

Saskatchewan has checked it out and found that there is research that backs up the positive aspects of this skill development in all children and grade three students will continue to learn how to write.
